Review

"Many conversations that I hear from administrators focus on how to deal with educators, yet often don't focus on reflecting what they can do different. The authors do a beautiful job of helping leaders focus inward, instead of outward. This book by Joe and Tony, grounded in the importance of empowered relationships with the entire school community, provides some amazing ideas on how to develop learner-centred schools (learners meaning students and educators) in ways that could be implemented immediately. This is an essential read for leaders who are, or want to lead, learner-centred schools." George Couros ~ Author of "The Innovator's Mindset", and Innovative Leadership and Learning Consultant

"Hacking Leadership is a great read for any leader, young or old. It will inspire you to strive for excellence every day...while challenging any notion of status quo leadership you've had in the past. If you're looking to be a hands-on, in the trenches, innovative leader...then this is a great place to start. Veterans Sanfelippo and Sinanis have a way of making this kind of leadership look easy...and as a newbie principal, I know it's not! Hacking Leadership conveys meaningful lessons and allows for true goal setting that any leader (or organization) can put to good use for the greater good...that of the students!" Amber Teamann ~ Educational Leader, Speaker, Blogger and EdCamp Organizer

"For the last handful of years, at the forefront of the district/school branding movement have been Joe Sanfelippo and Tony Sinanis. In this book, these two renowned educators explore ten specific ways our schools can always operate with the students at the center of our actions and decisions. Furthermore, it is clear Joe and Tony are currently putting into practice what they preach, as they consistently call upon experiences to illustrate their points. This is a book for all leaders (not just administrators) who want to be inspired and make a difference." Ross Cooper ~ Co-Author of the upcoming Hacking PBL, Director of Curriculum, Educational Leader, Speaker and Blogger

"Hacking Leadership is an outstanding book about schools and school leadership written by two school leaders eminently qualified to write such a book. This book is filled with practical, inspiring, and common-sense strategies for taking school leadership to the next level. The organization of this book is perfect, with each chapter focusing on a simple solution to not-so-simple problems, including what we can do tomorrow to improve, a blueprint for implementing improvement strategies, and tips for overcoming pushback. I found myself eagerly turning the pages of this book, highlighting many nuggets of wisdom along the way. I recommend this book enthusiastically to anyone wishing to improve their leadership skills and the school they serve!" Jeff Zoul ~ Author, Assistant Superintendent for Curriculum and Instruction, Educational Leader, National Keynote Speaker and Blogger

"As the Director of Innovation for Future Ready Schools, I've had the opportunity to work closely with over 3,000 school administrators and over 500 school districts over the past year. Across the United States, I've witnessed firsthand how school leaders are searching tirelessly to find innovative ways to create schools that better work for kids. Grounded in research and evident in today's most successful schools, school leadership and culture lay the groundwork for systemic transformation. In Hacking Leadership, Sanfelippo and Sinanis, two highly successful practitioners, provide a blueprint for school leaders to build strong relationships, shift mindsets, and create dynamic school cultures with opportunities for all. Unlike many education books written today, Hacking Leadership, provides concrete steps to remove traditional roadblocks and shift the mindset of naysayers, both short and long term. If you're a school leader working to create a future ready school, you will find this book to be one of your best resources in your journey moving forward."- Thomas C. Murray, Director of Innovation, Future Ready Schools, Alliance for Excellent Education, Washington, DC

HACKING LEADERSHIP: 10 WAYS GREAT LEADERS INSPIRE LEARNING THAT TEACHERS, STUDENTS, AND PARENTS LOVE (HACK LEARNING SERIES) (VOLUME 5) BY PDF

The best leaders lead from the middle

When school leaders join teachers, students, and parents in a collaborative effort to improve teaching and learning, achievement soars and schools turn into vibrant communities, filled with enthusiastic members.

Teaching and learning feel too much like work

With constant emphasis on higher test scores and teacher accountability, it's easy for schools to become places filled with stress and despair, making teachers dread going to work and students disdain lessons and activities.

It's time to bring fun back to school

In Hacking Leadership, award-winning school administrators Joe Sanfelippo and Tony Sinanis demonstrate how to increase learning by leaving the office and engaging directly with all teachers and learners. They identify 10 problems with school leadership and provide dynamic, right-now solutions. During this exciting journey toward change, you learn how to:

- Transform yourself from leader to Lead Learner
- Amplify individual staff needs while maintaining a collaborative vision
- Employ unique strategies to break down the walls between home and school
- Empower students and staff to own their space
- Create a culture where “Yes” and “Trust” are the default
- Eliminate initiative overload while encouraging teachers to lead, as well
- Broadcast student voice
- Bring passion into your school
- Embrace technology and social channels in ways rarely considered in education
- Eradicate your deficit mindset

What makes Hacking Leadership different?

Sanfelippo and Sinanis present leadership strategies in ways few people have ever seen. These experienced, thoughtful, decisive leaders, share amazing, real anecdotes that make you feel like you're listening to trusted friends sitting in your living room. Then, they provide progressive, courageous, and practical solutions that you and all stakeholders will love, using the popular Hack Learning formula:

- The Problem (a single leadership issue that needs a Hacker's mentality)

- The Hack (a surprisingly easy solution that you've likely never considered)
- What You Can Do Tomorrow (no waiting necessary; you can lead from the middle immediately)
- Blueprint for Full Implementation (a step-by-step action plan for capacity building)
- The Hack in Action (yes, people have actually done this)

Great Read!

By Melissa Boyle

This book is not only an easy read but very practical for school leadership. The suggestions are based very much on today's schools and the community we serve. One of the best leadership books available with great information from cover to cover.

Inspiring read for school leaders

By Tamara Black

For my professional development this summer, I gathered quite a hefty stack of books to read. By far, Hacking Leadership will have the most impact when I return to school in the fall. This inspirational read is filled with real-life challenges and examples, as well as advice and ideas that can be immediately implemented. While it's a relatively quick and easy read, this is a book that I know I'll return to again and again. I highly recommend Hacking Leadership for all learning leaders.

Hacking Leadership is a MUST read for all school leaders ...

By Ed Kemnitzer

Hacking Leadership is a MUST read for all school leaders, aspiring instructional leaders, teachers, students, school board members, and all members of every school community. Tony Sinanis and Joe Sanfelippo present a veteran perspective on proven practices that build trust, relationships, morale, and culture within school communities. Hacking Leadership prompts its reader to reflect on his/her intentional and unintentional moves and ideas. As an instructional leader, I can't wait to put many of the authors' ideas into play so students reap the benefits of informed and networked leadership.
