By Midwest Book Review

"Urban Underground" is a ten volume series by Anne Schraff set in contemporary urban America. Drawing from a group of Tubman High teenagers, each individual story focuses upon a different but commonly encountered problem by teens including alcoholism, bullies, dropouts, drugs, unemployment, trust, loyalty, abuse, unemployment, self-esteem, and more. Deftly written at a 3.5 reading level and specifically oriented to teen readers, the titles comprising this outstanding series are Outrunning the Darkness; Shadows of Guilt; A Boy Called Twister; If You Really Loved Me; One of Us; Like a Broken Doll; The Quality of Mercy; The Fairest; To Be a Man; and Wildflower. Each title is available in both a print and an ebook edition and particularly appropriate for both school and community library collections for young adult readers.
